"Captain Cunningham when he entered on board the Diana, offered his sword as a prisoner, which was refused, and he was told that he must follow the Spaniards to Vera Cruz, which he indignantly rejected; his reply was, that as they had so superior a force, they might take him where they chose but that he would follow no vessel, and that he should represent the whole transaction to his governor. A scene of vulgarity, confusion and abuse passed on board of the Diana, that would disgrace an American cabin boy.

"It is owing to the firmness of Captain Cunningham that we have been enabled to reach our own shores, and that I have this opportunity to address you; for I am firmly convinced that no different treatment would have been measured to a non-combatant, than was inflicted on our sailors, fetters and lashes. The official statement of the outrage to American citizens and our national flag, has, I presume, before this been transmitted to Washington; and it is impossible to doubt that a just and high minded government will immediately take measures to redress her violated rights and afford to a meritorious officer an opportunity of effecting from the Star Spangled Banner, the cowardly insult, and ruffian outrages inflicted upon it.

"The American navy has shed too much of its precious blood to give our name a renown and glory a splendor which will be lasting and brilliant, it is too great a favorite with the American people, not at once to point to the cabinet the only means of wiping from its standard, a blot, with which cowards, backed by a vastly superior force, have attempted to stain it. To me, who saw all that passed, there is not a doubt, by their outrage and vulgar abuse, wish to provoke us to some act of hostility that would afford them a pretext for our indiscriminate butchery. They stood ready to discharge from two large vessels 42 heavy guns against a small vessel of eight guns. They fired without halting, they continued their firing after they ascertained who we were, they fired once after our Lieutenant was on board their vessel, they abused us by every vulgar epithet, they imprisoned our officer and fettered and flogged our men, they made disgraceful propositions to us, they deliberately aimed at our commander, searched our vessel, and stigmatized the worthy Porter as a pirate. To Be Continued.

SUICIDE.

Mrs. Mary Connolly, wife of James Connolly, a stone cutter, residing on Arch street in this city, purchased a quantity of arsenic at one of our drug stores on Wednesday. It is said she had been in a depressed state of mind for some time, and had disclosed to some neighbor, her purpose to take her life, but it was thought nothing of at the time. She took enough of the poison Wednesday night, it seems, to accomplish her purpose, she having died Thursday morning. She had been married only about six months, and was a native of County Galway, Ireland. Her age was about thirty-three. No cause is assigned for the deed, and so far as we have learned, no inquest has yet been held.

THE NEW RAILROAD.

The vote on the question of granting a charter for a parallel railroad from this city to Greenwich and thence to New York, was taken in the Senate yesterday afternoon, and resulted in its rejection. The people in the lower part of the country have reason to be thankful for this decision of the question. The vote was nearly unanimous against it.

HONOR WELL MERITED

The many friends of Mr. Frederick N. Judson, formerly of this city, will learn with satisfaction that he has been awarded the honor of the Valerity at the approaching commencement of Yale. This, the highest honor of college life, has been most worthily bestowed in this instance, and we congratulate our young friend on his success, which we trust is a harbinger of a long and honorable life.

JUNE WEDDINGS.

Miss Alice Burr Sterling, daughter of Deacon Edward Sterling and Mr. Frank Gaylord Cook will be married at 6:30 this evening in the South Congregational church. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Robert Carter of Washington, Conn., a cousin of the bride assisted by Rev. Frank Russell, pastor of the South church. Mrs. Elmer Beardsley will preside at the organ. The Misses Alice Carter and Ethel Sterling, two little nieces of the bride, will be flower girls.

The wedding obtains unusual interest from the fact that both the bride and groom as well as the maid of honor have taken the degree of B. A. magna cum laude at Harvard university.

Mr. William Walsh one of the best known young men on this city was married to Miss Anna Elizabeth Gundrop of New Haven at the Sacred Heart church in New Haven this morning. He has been a member of the DeWolf Hopper and Digby Bell opera companies and is under contract to sing with the latter company next fall. He is a graduate of the local high school and has been the leading tenor of St. Mary's church choir. The bride is well known in this city.

RUSIE'S FINE TO STAND.

Pittsburg, June 30.—The Board of directors of the National league yesterday decided that the fine of $100 imposed on Pitcher Amos Rusie last year at Baltimore for alleged drunkenness by President Freedman of the New York club was just and proper. Oliver Tobean, manager-captain of the Cleveland team was also remembered by the directors and will receive a letter informing him that he has been fined $200 for gross misconduct on the ball field and if he does not settle in 10 days he will be ineligible to play on any league grounds.

PERSONAL MENTION.

MODESTO C. ROLLAND

William Jennings Bryan, David Starr Jordan and Frank P. Walsh were the three American members of the commission that was appointed by the American Union Against Militarism to try to avert war with Mexico. The three Mexican members of the commission are Modesto C. Rolland, a leading engineer of New York and Mexico; Dr. Atl, editor of Accion Mundial of Mexico City, and Senor Luis Manuel Rojas, director of the Biblioteca Nacional of Mexico City. El Paso was fixed upon as the place of meeting. Senor Rolland said the hope of the conference was to delay hostilities until the people of both countries could understand what war meant and speak their minds. "The Mexican people don't want to fight Americans, and 99 per cent. of the Americans don't want to fight the Mexicans," he said. "But we know that if the Americans stay in Mexico and invade farther they will be met by the defenders of Mexico sovereignty. We want to acquaint both peoples with the facts in the case." Mr. Bryan and Mr. Walsh have declined to act, leaving Dr. Jordan the only American member of the commission.

PRINCE DANILO OF MONTENEGRO

Crown Prince Danilo of Montenegro, the heir to the throne of the little Balkan state which is now in the possession of the enemy, was born forty-five years ago to-day, June 30, 1871. The Prince is the brother-in-law of Grand Duke Nicholas Nikolaievitch, former commander in chief of the Russian army, as well as of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy. He is the uncle of Crown Prince Alexander, the regent of Serbia.

The Montenegrin Crown Prince has inherited none of the qualities which have won such wide fame for his aged father, King Nicholas I. He has been fond of dissipation since his early manhood and his figure in a number of amorous affairs not greatly to his credit. It is alleged that Prince Danilo's actions inspired the composer of "The Merry Widow," a fact which scandalized the Montenegrin court and led the ruler to drop his old patriarchal customs and assume all the airs of a strict royal regime.

While Montenegro was making its desperate stand against the Austrian invaders, the Crown Prince was living in idleness and ease on the Riviera, spending most of his time at the gaming tables of Monte Carlo. If he felt any call to go to the assistance of his struggling country, he contrived to repress the impulse.

The Crown Prince married, in 1899, a Teuton woman, Princess Jutta of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, a sister of the reigning grand duke of that German state. She has given him no children. Owing to his wild ways, Prince Danilo has never been popular with the Montenegrin people. His younger brother, Prince Mirko, is a stronger character than Danilo, but even more unpopular with the Montenegrins. Mirko is said to have gone over to the Austrians and it is predicted that he will be elevated to the throne in the event of victory for the Central Empires. It is probable that the Petrovitch dynasty in Montenegro is at an end. King Nicholas has been blamed by his people and by the Allies for not offering a firmer resistance to the enemy. The Crown Prince is so unpopular that he would scarcely be permitted to assume the crown, and Mirko is denounced as a traitor, and in the event of a victory for the Allies would not be permitted to ever set foot again on his native soil. Mirko, like his brother, has been mixed up in many affairs of an inglorious character. He is separated from his wife, a Serbian woman of the Obrenovitch dynasty. Mirko has three sons, Michael, Paul and Emmanuel, the eldest being eight years old. Whether it is to become an Austrian province or a part of Serbia, Montenegro's fate is seemingly sealed. It is understood that the Allies propose to award the country to Serbia—a project which would doubtless be quite acceptable to the people, since the great majority are Serbs.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

If the United States seizes railroads in northern Mexico, 1,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen have volunteered to go and man the trains.

There is a feeling among many drivers that because their horses never talk back, they are perfectly content with their exhausting work in warm weather.

Carranza made a big mistake in presenting his demand for the withdrawal of the Americans, before he had time to complete arming his soldiers with American guns.
